How the Public Can Respond to COVID-19 Related Community Needs

Many community members are looking for ways to help their neighbors during this challenging time. Greater Gallatin United Way and Bozeman Area Community Foundation encourage getting involved in these three ways:

1. Donate to the COVID-19 Response Fund. This collaborative fund is designed to expedite funding to the most critical needs in the immediate future and to help plan for longer-term needs of the region due to COVID-19. Donate to the COVID-19 Response Fund at www.Swmontanacovid-19fund.org or mail checks to:

Any questions about larger donations or stock gifts can be best facilitated via email to either bridget@bozemanfoundation.org or sylvia@greatergallatinunitedway.org.

2. Give to the nonprofits in our community. Many nonprofits and cultural organizations have been significantly impacted by social distancing and have canceled fundraising events and programming that provide essential revenues. Consider donating directly to a local nonprofit during this challenging time. Direct support to many of your favorite organizations can be made via the Give Big Gallatin Valley platform that supports over 200 nonprofits in Gallatin County from April 30 - May 1 by going to www.GiveBigGV.org.
3. Volunteer to help. If you are healthy, not part of an at-risk population, and want to volunteer, please visit VolunteerMT.org to learn more about COVID-19 related and other volunteer opportunities. If you are an agency with volunteer needs, please visit the VolunteerMT.org to post details of your volunteer needs.
